Commentary

The past six months have been one of the most challenging environments in recent memory for risk-on, risk-off strategies. The long-awaited launch of the Fed's monetary policy tightening program, sharply rising Treasury yields and the Russia/Ukraine conflict are just a few of the factors that have thrown traditional intermarket signals into flux. Lumber prices were incredibly volatile, which resulted in lags in the lumber/gold signal and hampering the fund's ability to establish a firm direction. Gold never really established itself as a safe haven or inflation hedge, which diminished its predictive power.

As recessionary pressures increase throughout the remainder of 2022, we expect some of these intermarket relationships to return. Sharply higher mortgage rates are likely to dampen enthusiasm for the housing market. The negative returns in both U.S. equities and Treasuries during the 1st quarter made conditions difficult for generating positive returns, but we anticipate better opportunities ahead as inflation is likely to cool and the Fed begins to normalize the interest rate environment.

As with all ETFs, Fund shares may be bought and sold in the secondary market at market prices. The market price normally should approximate the Fund's net asset value per share (NAV), but the market price sometimes may be higher or lower than the NAV. The Fund is new with a limited operating history. There are a limited number of financial institutions authorized to buy and sell shares directly with the Fund, and there may be a limited number of other liquidity providers in the marketplace. There is no assurance that Fund shares will trade at any volume, or at all, on any stock exchange. Low trading activity may result in shares trading at a material discount to NAV.

Because the Fund invests in Underlying ETFs an investor will indirectly bear the principal risks of the Underlying ETFs, including but not limited to, risks associated with investments in ETFs, equity securities, growth stocks, large and small capitalization companies, non-diversification, fixed income investments, derivatives, leverage. The Fund will bear its share of the fees and expenses of the underlying funds. Shareholders will pay higher expenses than would be the case if making direct investments in the underlying funds.

Because the Fund expects to change its exposure as frequently as each week based on short-term price performance information, (i) the Fund's exposure may be affected by significant market movements at or near the end of such short-term period that are not predictive of such asset's performance for subsequent periods and (ii) changes to the Fund's exposure may lag a significant change in an asset's direction (up or down) if such changes first take effect at or near a weekend. Such lags between an asset's performance and changes to the Fund's exposure may result in significant underperformance relative to the broader equity or fixed income market. Because the Adviser determines the exposure for the Fund based on the price movements of gold and lumber, the Fund is exposed to the risk that such assets or their relative price movements fail to accurately predict future performance.
